CNAFFI (model 12A)
Compact Noncontact Atomic Force Fingerprint Identifier

A glossy black surface.

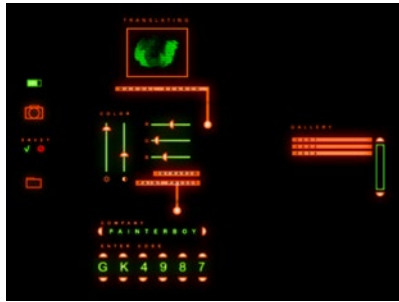

To use the machine, it needs to be pulled open as shown here:

A miniature version of the Kahryn probe force microscope that measures surfaces on atomic scale. The six quadrant deflector detects the bounce back from the laser diode underneath it.

A small viewfinder for manual targeting (saves battery).

A monitor that shows the fingerprints on the target (at 1 foot). Can also be used to view material saved on hard disk.

"Buttons" are reflected on the surface from a LCD display underneath. Has several menu directories and functions.

The unique aspect to this game is that the Cow and the Poodle are handcuffed together (they are escaping the police). This means that the two characters are chained together with a cartoonishly stretching chain, that stops them for example passing a tree from both sides or going too far away from each other.

(Quick edit)
BOOOM!
A massive piece of rock pushes up from the ground hitting Graham and pushing him in to air.
Smoke and pieces of rock fly through the air.

6
The rock sends Graham flying through the air.
The shockwave pushes Val to the ground.
The ground behind the rock starts to rise up.
Graham flies through the air spinning until he disappears behind the horizon.

7a
Val rises up to sit, looking at the direction where Graham flew.
Behind her, smoke rises from beneath the ground as the camera shakes.
Camera follows Val's head into...

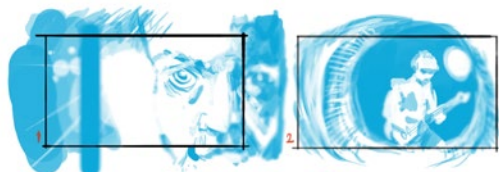

7b
Val screams after Graham.
(Maybe have "Graham!" form some other line)
In the background, we could see some parts of the ground rising up in to the air.

7c
Something catches Val's eyes on the left.
She turns.

8
The ground where the dragon lies rises up, turning so that one of the dragon's heads flips. The camera tilts up as the dragon falls (check schematic below).
(Maybe add something in there to hint that Rosella and Alex are within the mist to give Val something to worry about.)

CARTER: We have a deal.
Carter reaches for his pocket.

2A
Out of his pocket, Carter pulls out a secure phone.

He texts and presses send.
CARTER: Captain Walker is still alive.
I've requested that he be kept that way.

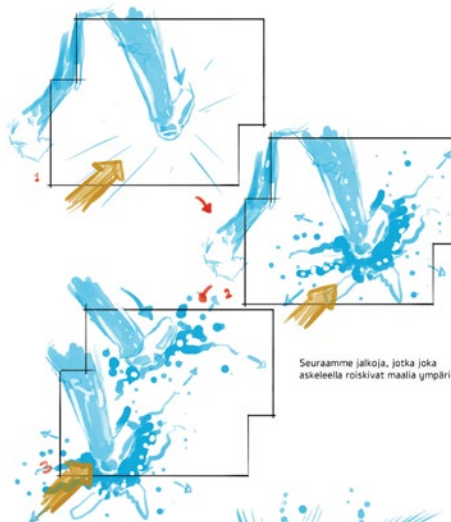

Within a heartbeat, Malachi jumps on Carter.

Malachi pushes Carter against the pool table with a hand on Carter's mouth.
With his free hand, Malachi grabs the phone away from Carter.
